Coordination and Subordination allow writers to...

- make connections between ideas
- emphasize certain ideas as more important than others
- create transitions between different ideas

For more information about coordination and subordination, including how to decide what information to subordinate, see The Everyday Writer, 3rd edition, Section 22 (pages 186-190).

Revised Spring 2008
Use a semicolon followed by a conjunctive adverb:
She studied all weekend; consequently, she passed the test. As in the example above, conjunctive adverbs are usually preceded by a semicolon and followed by a comma. Possible choices for conjunctive adverbs include:
